LYDIA H. SIGOURNEY

Facts About Iowa and Keokuk County

Midway between the Atlantic and Pacific, bounded on the east by the Mississippi and on the west by the Missouri, lies our great state of Iowa noted for its fertile soil, beautiful scenery, and peopled by a class of citizens known for their energy, industry, enterprise and intelligence. How long this beautiful prairie state was the home of the mound builders and the Indians is merely conjecture. We know however that the first white settlement within its boundaries was made by a French Canadian, Julien Dubuque, in 1788, at the place which now bears his name.

From 1803 to 1838 Iowa was successively a part of the "District of Louisiana," Territory of Missouri," "Territory of Michigan" and "Territory of Wisconsin." On July 4th, 1838 The Territory of Iowa came into existence. It included all of the present state and what is now Minnesota. The seat of government was at Burlington and the governor was Robert Lucas, ex-governor of Ohio, who was appointed by Martin Van Buren. In 1841 the capital was moved to Iowa City where it remained fifteen years when it was moved to Des Moines. In 1846 the present boundaries were agreed upon and on December 28th, 1846 Iowa was admitted as the twenty-ninth state. Ansel Briggs was the first governor of the new state.

Iowa's record of advancement in material and industrial development is a marvelous page in history, while her progress in education, religious ideas and moral reform has not been surpassed by any other state in the Union.

Sixty-six years of Statehood find her standing side by side with the oldest States in the Union, equaling them in educational development, in industrial enterprises and in opportunity, while surpassing many of them in moral reforms, religious activity and true ideas of living.

The area of Iowa is 56,025 square miles and the population in 1910 was 2,224,771. Des Moines, the capital and largest city of the state has a population of 86,368.

KEOKUK COUNTY

Keokuk County was named after the Indian Chief "Keokuk", who was the principal chief in the treaty which guaranteed to the white man a home within the limits of the county.

The first white settler in the county was Aaron Miller who settled near Richland, March 1833.

In 1843 the legislature of the territory passed an act fixing the boundary lines of the county [and in 1844 the legislature provided for the organization of the county.

On the 10th day of May 1844, the location of the county seat was fixed at Sigourney and the county duly organized.

The first county officers were elected in April 1844 and were, County Commissioners, Jeremiah Hollingsworth, James M. Smith, Enos Darnell; Judge of Probate, John M. Waters; County Treasurer, William H. Brown; County Surveyor, Samuel E. McCracken; County Assessor, Andrew Ogden, County Sheriff, George W. Hayes; County Recorder, A. P. Tannahill; Clerk of Commission, Edom Shugar.

The first white child born in the county was J. F. Scearcy December 15th, 1840. Mr. Scearcy is still a resident of the county and we give here a good picture of him as he appears at the present time.

At the time of the organization of the county there were fewer than 1000 people within the borders, at the last census, 1910 there were 21,160.

The population of the incorporated towns are as follows:

Sigourney	2032
What Cheer	1720
Keota	988
Hedrick	978
Delta	728
Richland	613
South English	338
Ollie	289
Martinsburg	285
Thornburg	233
Harper	232
Kinross	142
Webster	127

Since 1910 the town of Keswick has incorporated.

In the sixty-eight years of its history Keokuk County has made wonderful advancement. Today it is one of the wealthiest counties in the state and the land that could be had a little more than a half century ago for a little of nothing is now worth from $100 to $300 per acre for agriculture purposes. The fertility of the soil is unsurpassed, the intelligent citizenship, the happy homes, the almost constantly empty jail all speak volumes for the high standard of citizenship of Keokuk County.
